Dr. Linda Barter was born, raised, and attended veterinary school in Sydney, Australia. She practiced and trained further in Australia and New Zealand before coming to UC Davis for a residency in Anesthesia & Critical Patient Care. She was board certified by the American College of Veterinary Anesthesia and Analgesia in 2004 and received a PhD in Molecular, Cellular and Integrative Physiology from UC Davis in 2007. She then joined the UC Davis faculty, where she is currently an Associate Professor of Veterinary Anesthesiology. Dr Barter is interested in all aspects of anesthesia and analgesia and particularly enjoys teaching and anesthetizing many different species. Dr Barter has a feisty feline, a gregarious Golden, a bouncing bunny and too many fish tanks.
