Dr. Nicholas is a 2004 graduate of The Royal Veterinary College in London, England and a 2007 graduate of the internship program at The Animal Medical Center in New York City. He has practiced clinically as both an associate and relief veterinarian in a variety of general and emergency practices, and in several states. Seeing the need for better client education and tools to help veterinary teams, he started Preventive Vet in 2011 to "Give Dr. Google a Vet Degree" and to support his fellow veterinarians and their teams in their role as the trusted source in pet wellness and safety. A well-respected veterinarian and thought-leader in the pet owner education and pet safety spaces, Dr. Nicholas is a frequent contributor to newspaper and magazine articles, as well as television and radio programs. Originally from Pennsylvania, Dr. Nicholas now calls the beautiful Pacific Northwest his home. He resides in Portland, Oregon with his wonderful wife, two fantastic daughters, and their adorable rescued furry family members... Wendy, a 10yo Spaniel Mix, and Smudge, a 7yo DSH. In his spare time Dr. Nicholas loves to cook, hike, ski, and travel.
