

Dr. Polina Vishkautsan

Polina Vishkautsan obtained her DVM degree in 2001 from the Koret Veterinary School at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. She moved to the United States to pursue an internship in emergency and critical care in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. After the internship she finished a residency in Small Animal Internal Medicine in Angell Animal Medical Center in Boston. She stayed in Angell MSPCA for another year as part of the Medicine Department. For the following 7 years she worked in several emergency and specialty practices in Arizona and California. Starting August 2014, she began pursuing a fellowship in infectious diseases under the mentorship of Dr. Jane Sykes, at the UC Davis VMTH. In her spare time Polina enjoys spending time with her partner Henry, photography and world travel.