HYPOTHESES AND OBJECTIVES: The primary objective of this study is to compare survival and reproductive rates of captive-reared snowy plovers and oiled snowy plovers with rates from the Monterey Bay population. We hypothesize that survival and reproduction of captive-reared and oiled plovers will not differ from the wild-reared and non-oiled population.