Why Choose UC Davis?
Veterinary stem cell researchers at UC Davis have been at the forefront of regenerative medicine since its infancy. The RML utilizes research knowledge from dozens of faculty researchers in both the School of Veterinary Medicine and the School of Medicine and applies it to its stem cell isolation process to provide a better therapeutic product for veterinarians. This research has led to medical advancements for multiple species, including several successful clinical trials that may revolutionize veterinary medicine.