American College of Zoological Medicine (ACZM). Dr. Reidarson, who has served for eight years on the SeaWorld San Diego veterinary team, has published two book chapters and more than 50 papers. One of the unique animals he has worked with in the SeaWorld Rescue, Rehabilitation and Release Program is J.J. the gray whale, who lived at the adventure park for 14 months before being returned to the ocean in 1998.

In Memoriam

Gaylord Conzelman Jr., professor emeritus of pharmacology, died unexpectedly October 6, 1999, at age 76, while traveling in Lhasa, Tibet. In 1963 he became assistant director of the California Regional Primate Research Center and served the school as assistant dean for student programs from 1979–82. He retired from UC Davis in 1987, settled in Taos, New Mexico, and enjoyed gardening, skiing, traveling and volunteering for the Taos public library, Habitat for Humanity and the Humane Society.

Jennifer Silva, ’94, died October 15, 1999, at age 38 after a long battle with breast cancer. Dr. Silva practiced in Texas, where Animal Trustees of Austin has created an annual Dr. Jenny Silva Memorial Award, which will be given to individuals and organizations that perform outstanding deeds for the betterment of animals’ lives.

Alumni Notes

Mimi Arighi, ’79, served on the faculty of both the University of Wisconsin and the University of Guelph in large animal surgery, and was board certified in surgery in 1989. She became hospital director of the Veterinary Teaching Hospital at Purdue School of Veterinary Medicine in 1998. She says, “The Greater Lafayette area is a very nice place to live. The veterinary school is a great one, and I have been enjoying my time as hospital director.”

Dallas Hyde, professor of anatomy, physiology and cell biology, and associate dean for research and graduate studies, and Peter F. Moore, professor of pathology, microbiology and immunology, received the 1999 Pfizer Research Award.

Melinda Lommer, lecturer in dentistry and oral surgery, and first resident to complete UC Davis’ program in veterinary dentistry (one of only three in the nation), received the Dr. Peter Emily Outstanding Candidate Award given by the American Veterinary Dental College to a candidate in an approved program in veterinary dentistry.

Kudos

Continued from page 5

John Harris of Coalinga, California, received the 1999 School of Veterinary Medicine Distinguished Service Award for his dedication to advances in equine health, performance and wellbeing through his support toward establishment of the John P. Hughes Endowed Chair in Equine Reproduction, the school’s first endowed chair, and support for the Silver Stirrup Society gift club and the Equine Research Laboratory (currently known as the Center for Equine Health).

Thomas Reidarson, ’85, in 1999 became one of 63 veterinarians in the world who are board certified by the American College of Zoological Medicine (ACZM). Dr. Reidarson, who has served for eight years on the SeaWorld San Diego veterinary team, has published two book chapters and more than 50 papers. One of the unique animals he has worked with in the SeaWorld Rescue, Rehabilitation and Release Program is J.J. the gray whale, who lived at the adventure park for 14 months before being returned to the ocean in 1998.

In Memoriam

Gaylord Conzelman Jr., professor emeritus of pharmacology, died unexpectedly October 6, 1999, at age 76, while traveling in Lhasa, Tibet. In 1963 he became assistant director of the California Regional Primate Research Center and served the school as assistant dean for student programs from 1979–82. He retired from UC Davis in 1987, settled in Taos, New Mexico, and enjoyed gardening, skiing, traveling and volunteering for the Taos public library, Habitat for Humanity and the Humane Society.

Jennifer Silva, ’94, died October 15, 1999, at age 38 after a long battle with breast cancer. Dr. Silva practiced in Texas, where Animal Trustees of Austin has created an annual Dr. Jenny Silva Memorial Award, which will be given to individuals and organizations that perform outstanding deeds for the betterment of animals’ lives.

Alumni Notes

Mimi Arighi, ’79, served on the faculty of both the University of Wisconsin and the University of Guelph in large animal surgery, and was board certified in surgery in 1989. She became hospital director of the Veterinary Teaching Hospital at Purdue School of Veterinary Medicine in 1998. She says, “The Greater Lafayette area is a very nice place to live. The veterinary school is a great one, and I have been enjoying my time as hospital director.”

Dallas Hyde, professor of anatomy, physiology and cell biology, and associate dean for research and graduate studies, and Peter F. Moore, professor of pathology, microbiology and immunology, received the 1999 Pfizer Research Award.

Melinda Lommer, lecturer in dentistry and oral surgery, and first resident to complete UC Davis’ program in veterinary dentistry (one of only three in the nation), received the Dr. Peter Emily Outstanding Candidate Award given by the American Veterinary Dental College to a candidate in an approved program in veterinary dentistry.

Kudos

Continued from page 5

John Harris of Coalinga, California, received the 1999 School of Veterinary Medicine Distinguished Service Award for his dedication to advances in equine health, performance and wellbeing through his support toward establishment of the John P. Hughes Endowed Chair in Equine Reproduction, the school’s first endowed chair, and support for the Silver Stirrup Society gift club and the Equine Research Laboratory (currently known as the Center for Equine Health).

Thomas Reidarson, ’85, in 1999 became one of 63 veterinarians in the world who are board certified by the American College of Zoological Medicine (ACZM). Dr. Reidarson, who has served for eight years on the SeaWorld San Diego veterinary team, has published two book chapters and more than 50 papers. One of the unique animals he has worked with in the SeaWorld Rescue, Rehabilitation and Release Program is J.J. the gray whale, who lived at the adventure park for 14 months before being returned to the ocean in 1998.

In Memoriam

Gaylord Conzelman Jr., professor emeritus of pharmacology, died unexpectedly October 6, 1999, at age 76, while traveling in Lhasa, Tibet. In 1963 he became assistant director of the California Regional Primate Research Center and served the school as assistant dean for student programs from 1979–82. He retired from UC Davis in 1987, settled in Taos, New Mexico, and enjoyed gardening, skiing, traveling and volunteering for the Taos public library, Habitat for Humanity and the Humane Society.

Jennifer Silva, ’94, died October 15, 1999, at age 38 after a long battle with breast cancer. Dr. Silva practiced in Texas, where Animal Trustees of Austin has created an annual Dr. Jenny Silva Memorial Award, which will be given to individuals and organizations that perform outstanding deeds for the betterment of animals’ lives.

Alumni Notes

Mimi Arighi, ’79, served on the faculty of both the University of Wisconsin and the University of Guelph in large animal surgery, and was board certified in surgery in 1989. She became hospital director of the Veterinary Teaching Hospital at Purdue School of Veterinary Medicine in 1998. She says, “The Greater Lafayette area is a very nice place to live. The veterinary school is a great one, and I have been enjoying my time as hospital director.”

Dallas Hyde, professor of anatomy, physiology and cell biology, and associate dean for research and graduate studies, and Peter F. Moore, professor of pathology, microbiology and immunology, received the 1999 Pfizer Research Award.

Melinda Lommer, lecturer in dentistry and oral surgery, and first resident to complete UC Davis’ program in veterinary dentistry (one of only three in the nation), received the Dr. Peter Emily Outstanding Candidate Award given by the American Veterinary Dental College to a candidate in an approved program in veterinary dentistry.

Kudos

Continued from page 5

John Harris of Coalinga, California, received the 1999 School of Veterinary Medicine Distinguished Service Award for his dedication to advances in equine health, performance and wellbeing through his support toward establishment of the John P. Hughes Endowed Chair in Equine Reproduction, the school’s first endowed chair, and support for the Silver Stirrup Society gift club and the Equine Research Laboratory (currently known as the Center for Equine Health).

Thomas Reidarson, ’85, in 1999 became one of 63 veterinarians in the world who are board certified by the American College of Zoological Medicine (ACZM). Dr. Reidarson, who has served for eight years on the SeaWorld San Diego veterinary team, has published two book chapters and more than 50 papers. One of the unique animals he has worked with in the SeaWorld Rescue, Rehabilitation and Release Program is J.J. the gray whale, who lived at the adventure park for 14 months before being returned to the ocean in 1998.

In Memoriam

Gaylord Conzelman Jr., professor emeritus of pharmacology, died unexpectedly October 6, 1999, at age 76, while traveling in Lhasa, Tibet. In 1963 he became assistant director of the California Regional Primate Research Center and served the school as assistant dean for student programs from 1979–82. He retired from UC Davis in 1987, settled in Taos, New Mexico, and enjoyed gardening, skiing, traveling and volunteering for the Taos public library, Habitat for Humanity and the Humane Society.

Jennifer Silva, ’94, died October 15, 1999, at age 38 after a long battle with breast cancer. Dr. Silva practiced in Texas, where Animal Trustees of Austin has created an annual Dr. Jenny Silva Memorial Award, which will be given to individuals and organizations that perform outstanding deeds for the betterment of animals’ lives.